PASTORS CORNER

Dear Friends,

From time to time, guidance will be sent out from the bishop to all the parishes. This week, Bishop Vann sent out to the priests, religious and diocesan new norms connected to the Use of Holy Oils and the gesture of Laying on of Hands. This was, as he notes, after consultation with priests, deacons, and lay leaders in the diocese.

In the Diocese of Orange, blessed oil is no longer to be used as anointing in prayer groups and gatherings. The concern is that the blessed oils are overshadowing the importance of the Holy Oils and especially the Sacrament of the Sick. So, in all our prayer groups, we no longer have permission to anoint with oils that are not the Sacrament of the Sick. If someone is ill, the parish office can arrange time for a priest to give the Anointing of the Sick.

The Bishop is also instructing the following to be implemented: At pastoral gatherings, apostolic groups, retreats, and other ecclesial activities, intercessory prayer shall ordinarily be offered without laying hands on individuals. Also, the lay faithful shall not extend a hand over individuals or over the assembly with the intention of imparting a blessing during the celebration of Holy Mass, other liturgical rites, or any official celebration of the Church. The Laying on of Hands is something that goes back to the time of the Apostles. It was reserved to them only in the Liturgy. The diocese is making a sharper distinction between gestures of the clergy and the lay people during liturgical events.

These are the changes that as pastor, I expect all prayer groups to support and carry through. When special blessings are given during Holy Mass, please do not extend your hands but pray silently with the rest of the assembly. Should you wish to, the full text will be available to read in our parish office.

RINCON DEL PASTOR

Queridos amigos,

De vez en cuando, el obispo enviará orientación a todas las parroquias. Esta semana, el Obispo Vann envió a los sacerdotes, religiosos y diocesanos nuevas normas relacionadas con el Uso de los Santos Óleos y el gesto de la Imposición de Manos. Esto fue, como él señala, después de consultar con sacerdotes, diáconos y líderes laicos de la diócesis.

En la Diócesis de Orange, el aceite bendito ya no debe usarse como unción en grupos de oración y reuniones. La preocupación es que los aceites benditos están opacando la importancia de los Santos Óleos y especialmente del Sacramento de los Enfermos. Así que, en todos nuestros grupos de oración, ya no tenemos permiso para ungir con aceites que no sean el Sacramento de los Enfermos. Si alguien está enfermo, la oficina parroquial puede organizar un tiempo para que un sacerdote dé la Unción de los Enfermos.

El Obispo también está instruyendo lo siguiente: En reuniones pastorales, grupos apostólicos, retiros y otras actividades eclesiales, la oración de intercesión normalmente se ofrecerá sin imposición de manos sobre individuos. Además, los fieles laicos no deben extender la mano sobre individuos ni sobre la asamblea con la intención de impartir una bendición durante la celebración de la Santa Misa, otros ritos litúrgicos o cualquier celebración oficial de la Iglesia. La imposición de manos es algo que se remonta a la época de los Apóstoles. Solo se les reservaba en la Liturgia. La diócesis está haciendo una distinción más clara entre los gestos del clero y los laicos durante los eventos litúrgicos.

Estos son los cambios que, como pastor, espero que todos los grupos de oración apoyen y lleven a cabo. Cuando se den bendiciones especiales durante la Santa Misa, por favor no extiendan las manos, sino que oren en silencio con el resto de la asamblea. Si así lo desean, el texto completo estará disponible para su lectura en nuestra oficina parroquial.
